Storm Damages Electric Line, and Delays Paper

A heavy thunderstorm accompanied by a highwind which had all the appearances of a young cyclone swept this section Thursday morning between five and seven o'clock. The high wind put the Public Service line out of commission at Mokena and the News Bulletin plant was tied up for five hours which accounts for our publications being delayed this week. Many limbs were torn off of trees and some trees were blown over in Mokena. A large tree standing close to the walk on the C. Sippel lot was partly blown over and the roots of the tree being under the cement walk raised the walk six inches. A window was blown in in the Barney Hostert place on Neithammer ave. In New Lenox much damage to trees is reported. Sign boards were blown down. A gutter was torn off the Harvey Frick house. A chimney on the St. Mary Catholic church, Mokena, was blown down. In Frankfort a large tree in front of the Leppa place was blown over and thrown across the walk and the street. Reports from the territory southeast of Frankfort indicate the storm was quite severe there, roofs being blown from farm buildings and silos were damaged and other damage was done.

CORRECTION

Thru a typographical error the date in the auction sale adv. of Wm. Knippel appearing on page 5 was made to read "Monday, Feb. 5, 1932" when it should have read "Monday, Feb. 15, 1932". Special attention is called to the fact that the corrected adv. is re-printed on the back page of this issue.

Tinley P. T. A. Notes

The members of the P. T. A., sure did take advantage of the beautiful day and came out to attend our meeting last Friday, Feb. 5th. The meeting was called to order at 1:30 p. m. and at 2:30 we went into the second grade room where the little ones did their best to read, subtract and add for their teacher, Miss Nelson. It was interesting to see how they would try to answer correctly. After the lesson they were given ice cream bars and cookies. Miss Nelson's room won the banner for most mothers attending. Let us do as much next month for the first room.

Death Ends 11 Years of Illness Of Florence Grater

A life filled with tragedy, irony of fate and great suffering drew to a close peacefully when Mrs. Herbert Grater nee Florence Mau, died Sunday night at eight o'clock in her home in Mokena. For eleven years she had been an invalid and was confined to bed during this time. She never complained and was resigned to her lot and bore years of suffering and loneliness with real fortitude and thru these years developed a deep grounded faith in the thought that the Great Master of all was her final salvation. The last few days of her life were filled with untold suffering. She was fully conscious up to the very end.

The departed was born in Joliet January 15, 1896 and at the age of three weeks was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. John Mau of Joliet. Mr. Mau died when she was six years old.

Shortly after that she came to Mokena with her foster mother and has resided here since.

On June 14, 1913 she was united in marriage with George Mahoney of Aurora. To this union one son was born.

She was stricken ill at the age of 25 years and was confined to bed from then on to the time of her death.

In December 1928 she was united in marriage with Herbert Grater of Blue Island. By an odd kink of fate both her marriages were solemnized in the room in which she laid ill and in which she died.

Surviving her are her husband, her son Clifford and her foster mother, Mrs. Mary Mau, besides other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held from the Mokena M. E. church Monday afternoon, with Rev. L. E. Cooke officiating. He conducted a beautiful service, comparing the life of the departed as a pageant in which was mirrored despair, resignation, hope and love.

Mrs. Wm. Semmler sang three songs, "In The Upper Garden", "Some Sweet Day", "Rock of Ages". Burial took place in the St. John Cemetery south of Mokena.

Mrs. Grater was a member of the Mokena M. E. church. She attained the age of 36 years 23 days. Thus this has been written to a young, but tragic life.

Mokena P. T. A. Dad's Night A Successful Affair

The Mokena P. T. A., put on a very pleasing entertainment in honor of "Dad's Night" at the Mokena School Auditorium Tuesday evening.

Features of the program were numbers by the Mokena Community Band, songs by the boys and girls glee clubs, musical sketch by Misses Baker and Doig, Hawaiian musical numbers by the Three Aces, (Carlos, Wanda and Alva Hall) character dance by Dorothy Eiler and other numbers. A representative of the Chicago Motor Club gave a safety talk. At the close of the program light refreshments were served. All present enjoyed a delightful time.

To Ring Bells On Washington's Birthday

All the churches have been asked to help in celebrating the 200th birthday anniversary with special services and to ring the church bells at ten o'clock on the morning of February 22nd marking the hour of Washington's birth and it is hoped that the churches in this section will cause their bells to be rung on the day mentioned.

Officially scheduled to open Feb. 22, the nation wide Bicentennial celebration of George Washington's birth will nevertheless be inaugurated unofficially in religious services thruout the entire country during the three days just preceding that date. On Friday, February 19, those whose Sabbath begins at sundown on the sixth day of the week will honor the memory of Washington in their regular devotional services. The following day, Saturday, others will observe the Sabbath in similar manner, and on Sunday all other religious groups will hold divine services paying tribute to the Father of his Country.

A very nice meeting of the Junior Garden Club was held Saturday, February 6th at the school. President Fern Fulton presided at the meeting which was well attended too.

Three new Garden Buds joined the club, these were Marie Bettenhausen, Hildegard Treim and Juanita Jones. We were very happy to have them and hope they will enjoy the work of the Junior Garden Club.

We were sorry to have the following buds on the sick list:

Dolores Henderson, Fay Hirsch, Lorraine LaLonde, Helene Hirsch. Mrs. Florence Anderson read a very interesting article on the Oak Tree. She asked questions and these were answered by the buds.

Marguerite Lorenz read an article on the Ageratum, Fern Fulton on the Alyssum and Irma Hick read one on the Aster.

Three Buds will prepare lessons for the next meeting.

Shirley Anderson had a very lovely notice on the bulletin board to announce this meeting. It was decorated with red, white and blue flowers. The following program was prepared by Shirley Anderson assisted by Mrs. E. Anderson:

Feb-u-ary? Well I should say Your winds so contrary Nearly blow me away.

February is a great month. George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Thomas Edison, Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh, four of our most noted men, first saw light in the month of February.

The anniversaries of these men should always be honored in some fitting way, so as to show our love and appreciation of their wonderful services to the nation and humanity.

It is in this month too, that we do homage to St. Valentine, an occasion that means much to girls and boys, both old and young.

The 14th of Feb. marks the date on which he gave his life for the religious faith and not his birthday.

The above was given by the program chairman, Shirley Anderson. She announced the following program:

- 1.—America Jr. Garden Club
- 2.—Pledge of allegiance to the flag.
- 3.—Brief biography of Washington's life Delphine Kebert
- 4.—Piano Solo Betty Henderson

- 6.—Edison Alfreda Schmidt
- 7.—Lindbergh Marion Moss

Two delicious cakes were brought by Betty Henderson and Ruth Freitag. These were served on Valentine napkins to the buds.

We also enjoyed having Mrs. C. Goessel and Mrs. Lulu Rogers with us. All these ladies are happy to help give these little buds a pleasant afternoon and we want you all to help boost the Junior Garden Club.

Will H. Smith Should Be Re-named Highway Supt.

The Will County Board of Supervisors is going to meet in special session next Tuesday at which time the board is to name a county superintendent of highways. Will H. Smith who has filled this office most creditably for many years, is a candidate for re-appointment to this office. He has been an honest, conscientious public servant and should be re-appointed. There are other aspirants for this office, but the Board will make a serious mistake if they fail to reappoint Mr. Smith. It is to be hoped that the Board will give Mr. Smith first consideration in view of the efficient service he has rendered Will County.

Orland and S. W. Towns to Benefit By New Clinic

The prevailing general economic depression has imposed a tremendous hardship upon the great middle class. These hardships are felt most keenly when sickness visits a family. This continued economic standstill is thus the cause of the overfilling of our charitable hospitals and free clinics.

Confronted with this situation, a group of humanitarian physicians of the greater South Side have conceived the idea of offering to the public, as the Chicago Medical society has heretofore done, diagnostic service in all branches of medicine and surgery.

Group practice of the healing art has been in operation elsewhere, and in other parts of Chicago and to the residents of the Southwest towns of Cook County an opportunity is offered to visit a new clinic near their neighborhood.

The physicians who are managing this group are all graduates of Class A medical schools. They have secured and leased the entire second floor of the Auburn Park hospital, 449 Winneconna parkway, which is situated in the heart of the great business and residential section. The hours are from 9 to 12. The proposed clinic will operate on the basis of free service to patients who are unable to pay, with a minimum fee to those who are able to pay. Cases requiring hospitalization will be taken in at a minimum fee.

As planned the clinic will be equipped for full co-operation with all outside physicians who may refer their cases to the clinic for diagnosis. The cases will then be referred back to the physicians for treatment. Such consultant services should prove of great help to the individual physician.

Among the doctors sponsoring the clinic are: Drs. William G. Shurtz, G. K. Barnes, D. W. Eliss, H. E. Kimball and Virgil Whippert. These men, who have had a wealth of clinical experience in such work, will each be the heads of a different department and direct the work of the other physicians in the group.

The project will receive the warmest comments and heartiest support of both physicians of Orland and the Southwest towns, community leaders point out.

Politics

Candidates for various county, state and local office are coming out in full force. The office of state's attorney of Will County is claiming much attention. H. Rehn, the present incumbent is coming out for re-election. Charles Blim of Joliet and Wm. McCabe of Lockport are also candidates for this office and a very hot primary fight is in view. The Democrats are also going to have a full county ticket in the field.

It is understood that Homer B. Grommon of Wheatland, chairman of the Will County Taxpayers League is coming out as a candidate for the office of county auditor on the Republican ticket.

In Frankfort township town politics will be rather tame this spring. A highway commissioner and a school trustee are the only officers to be elected. Emil D. Cappel of Mokena who has filled the office of highway commissioner of Frankfort township commendably for two terms of four years each, is a candidate for re-election to this office on the People's Ticket and has filed his petition. The many friends of Mr. Cappel feel he has rendered efficient service and should be returned to this office in the April town election.

To Hold Card Party For Benefit of Tinley Park Baseball Team

The newly organized Tinley Park Baseball Club have set aside, Wednesday, March 9th at which time they will hold a bunco and card party in the American Legion Hall. They will also award the radio that the members are receiving subscriptions for at that time.

This is a real civic enterprise and all citizens should join in and assist the boys as much as possible in reaching the goal they are striving for. The purpose for which the proceeds will be used, is to purchase uniforms and equipment for use this year and to repair and improve the playing field. This is a large order for these boys to attempt at such times as the present, but all are working hard and the success of their venture depends on how much support is given them.

The team this year will consist of only Tinley Park boys and in patronizing this bunco you will be helping the young men of your own community.

Any young man from the age of 15 to 50 who is interested in belonging to the club, should meet at the home of Henry Boldt in Tinley Park on Wednesday, Feb. 17th at 7:30 p. m. No one is barred and all are welcome. Let's put Tinley on the map in a baseball way and the more members the merrier. Come to the meeting and learn the facts.

On Lincoln's Birthday

—Let his service to mankind be an inspiration to us all.

THE noble ideals, the courage and spiritual greatness of Abraham Lincoln should be as a beacon light along our path of life.

In paying tribute today to the great American, let us strengthen our resolve to be better men and women, more useful citizens. Unselfish service should be the guiding thought of every individual and organization.

Our many years of service to the public has confirmed our belief that on Service alone and increasingly better service may we build enduring prosperity.

Los Angeles Boy Needed Help

Leroy Young, 1116 Georgia St., Los Angeles, is a "regular fellow," active in sports, and at the top in his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness but his mother says: "When Leroy was just a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and puny."

"When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and biliousness stopped and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have since used California Fig Syrup with him for colds and upset spells. He likes it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps him so wonderfully!"

California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 50 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way.

Four million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it. Always look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.

The Centuries

The Nineteenth century included the whole of 1900, just as the First century, beginning with January 1 in the year 1, would include the whole year, 100. The Twentieth century, therefore, began with January 1 in 1901, and it will not be completed until December 31, 2000.

The editors and publishers of central and southern Illinois met at a luncheon in Springfield, January 23, to discuss plans for state-wide programs for the celebration of the George Washington Bi-Centennial beginning February 22 and ending on Thanksgiving day, 1932. Much enthusiasm was evident at this meeting. William G. Thoy, chairman of the Illinois Bi-Centennial commission was the principal speaker.

The Glenn bill, which has been reported favorably by the senate commerce committee provided: "(1) Appropriation of $1,725,000 for the federal government's exhibit at a Century of Progress. (2) Establishment of the Chicago World's Fair Centennial commission, to be composed of the secretaries of state, agriculture, and commerce. (3) Appointment of a commissioner of a Century of Progress by the President. (4) Authorization to executive departments, independent officers and establishments of the government to co-operate with the commissioner, to lend exhibits for the science and other exhibits, and to exhibit the function and administrative faculty of the government in the advancement of industry, the arts and peace, demonstrating the nature of our institutions particularly as regards their adaptation to the wants of the people."

According to an article in "The Fox Valley Mirror," published by Leonard Fowler, the tract of land for the Spring Grove fish hatchery grounds was purchased by the state of Illinois 18 years ago for $10,000. Its value has now increased many times. The spring on the property is worth twice as much as the price paid. The hatchery costs about $9,000 a year for maintenance. This includes fish food, salaries, labor, and all proper costs. All of this sum comes from fishing and hunting licenses. The hatchery is under the direction of Ralph F. Bradford, director of the state department of conservation.

Millions of tourists, it is expected, will drive to Chicago in 1933 to visit "A Century of Progress." To encourage motorists to come to Chicago during the five months the exposition will be open, provisions for their convenience are now being made. Satisfactory places to park, comfortable living quarters, and adequate means of reaching the fair grounds are included in the plans.

The Council of the American Library association at its meeting in Chicago, December 28-30, adopted the following resolution: "The American Library association believes that the depression offers a challenge to the public libraries of America, as it does to newspapers, magazines, and other agencies for the diffusion of knowledge. The book supply, reading room space, and personnel of the libraries are being taxed now as never before because of the unprecedented number of readers and students. Economic insecurity breeds intellectual unrest, sending many thoughtful men and women to books, while idleness and lack of funds increase the popularity of reading as recreation. The loss of a job makes a man think about his education equipment for another job. The American Library association recognizes the extraordinary difficulties brought about by the economic situation and, while advising all reasonable economy, calls upon library trustees to champion the cause of the library before appropriating bodies, pointing out the necessity of maintaining, in spite of all obstacles, those essential services which promote intelligent thinking and vocational education or re-education and which help to keep up the public morale." Business Opportunities in Illinois.
On February 1, 100 employees of the Texas Oil company refinery at Lockport will return to work after a two weeks' lay-off. The Texas company employed more than 400 persons at the Lockport plant.

About 20 men have been put to work on the Hellrung playground site in Alton.

The 1932 prospects for Flora's industries seem bright. The 120 employees of the Kuehne factory have been placed on a six day schedule of ten hours each. The International Shoe company has been operating five days per week with about 350 employees. There is renewed activity at the Sexton factory, the rayon department has been added.

Approximately 1,100 men have returned to work at the Silvis shops of the Rock Island railroad.

According to the state department of labor, manufacturing activity in Illinois increased during the period between November 15 and December 15. Factory pay rolls gained 4.4 per cent. Most of the increase in employment was due to an action of a Springfield shoe factory which resumed operations giving employment to 500 persons and to similar action by a Decatur garment company which employs 200 persons.

International Frocks, Inc., at Pinckneyville, has stepped up production and has added workers until the plant is up to capacity with 300 employees and all machines working.

The valuation of building projects, which were authorized for Illinois during December, represented a gain of 119.7 per cent over the figure for November.

The Mechanics Machine company, of Rockford, has just received orders which will necessitate the operation of the plant with a good force for the next six months.

Employees of the cutting room department of the Brown Shoe company, Litchfield, have been recalled to work. Other departments are expected to resume operations during the next few weeks.

The Manufacturers' Assembly company of Chicago has leased the building formerly occupied by the Phelps Manufacturing company in Aurora. The concern is making electrical appliances and the plant will be put in operation not later than February 1.

A hundred and fifty men have returned to work at the Moline plant of the Republic Iron and Steel company.

Another sign of returning prosperity in Springfield is found in the fact that the Baker Manufacturing company is working its entire force of men full time, and has been for the last six weeks. The company employs about 100 men.

North Chicago's unemployed, who are actually in dire need of charitable aid, are to be given work in the very near future on the projects of widening Jackson street and the construction of a roadway leading to the North Chicago waterworks.

A PROPHECY

(From "Lincoln's Grave.")

Old soldiers true, ah, them all men can trust,
Who fought, with conscience clear, on either side;
Who bearded death and thought their cause was just;
Their stainless honor can not be denied;
Ring it and sing it up and down the land,
And let no voice dare answer it with sneers,
Or shut its meaning out;
Ring it and sing it, we go hand in hand,
Old infantry, old cavalry, old cannoniers.

And if Virginia's vales shall ring again
To battle-wells of Mosby or Mahone,
If Wilder's wild brigade or Morgan's men
Once more wheel into lines; or all alone
A Sheridan shall ride, a Cleburne fall—
There will not be two flags above them flying,
But both in one, welded in that pure flame
Upflaring in us all,
When kindred unto kindred, loudly crying,
Rally and cheer in freedoms' holy name!
—Maurice Thompson.

Lincoln Wrote His Own Autobiography

Document in Possession of Milwaukee Family.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S autobiography, consisting of slightly more than 500 words in his own handwriting, is in the possession of Mrs. Harriet F. Richardson and her son, of Milwaukee, Wis.

They were willed the document by the late Miss Fannie Fell. Jesse Fell, Miss Fell's father, shared law offices with Lincoln in Springfield, Ill. He prevailed upon Lincoln to write the autobiography in 1859 when it became apparent that the great emancipator would become a Presidential candidate.

Extracts from the autobiography follow:

"I was born February 12, 1809, in Hardin county, Kentucky. My parents were both born in Virginia of undistinguished families, second families, I should say. My mother, who died in my tenth year, was of a family of the name of Hanks, some of whom now reside in Adams, and others in Macon county, Illinois.

"My paternal grandfather, Abraham Lincoln, emigrated from Rockingham county, Virginia, to Kentucky about 1781 or 1782, where a year or two later ter he was killed by Indians, not in battle, but by stealth, when he was laboring to open a farm in the forest.

"His ancestors, who were Quakers, went to Virginia from Berks county, Pennsylvania. An effort to identify them with the New England family of the same name, ended in nothing more definite than a similarity of Christian names of both families, such as Enoch, Levi, Mordecai, Solomon, Abraham and the like.

"My father, at the death of his father, was but six years of age and he grew up literally without education. He removed from Kentucky to what is now Spencer county, Indiana, in my eighth year.

"At twenty-one I came to Illinois and passed the first year in Illinois—Macon county. Then I got to New Salem, where I remained a year as a sort of clerk in the store. Then came the Black Hawk war and I was elected a captain of volunteers, a success which gave me more pleasure than any I have had since. I went into the campaign, was elected, ran for the legislature the same year (1832) and was beaten. Only time I have ever been beaten by the people. The next three succeeding biennial elections I was elected to the legislature.

"During this legislative period I had studied law and removed to Springfield to practice it. In 1841 I was elected to the lower house of congress. From 1849 to 1854 I practiced law more assiduously than ever before—always a Whig in politics, and generally on the Whig electoral tickets, making active canvasses.

"If any personal description of me is thought desirable, it may be said, I am 6 feet 4 inches in height, lean in flesh, weighing on an average 180 pounds; dark complexion, with coarse hair and gray eyes—no marks or brands recollected."

LET every man remember that to violate the law is to trample on the blood of his fathers, and to tear the charter of his own and his children's liberty.—Abraham Lincoln.

Lesson for February 14

JESUS AND THE MAN BORN BLIND

LESSON TEXT—John 9:1-41.
GOLDEN TEXT—Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Makes a Blind Man See.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Gives Sight to a Blind Beggar.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Jesus Did for a Blind Man. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus the Light of the World.

I. Working the Works of God While It is Day (vv. 1-5).

1. The disciples' problem (vv. 1, 2). In their minds all affliction, negative and positive, was God's retribution for sin. Therefore, they argued that this man's blindness proved his sin. They recognized also that the effect of sin is sometimes hereditary. The common philosophy of men about us today is that sickness, disease, and all sorts of calamities, is God's judgment for sin.

2. The Lord's answer (vv. 3-5). Jesus affirmed that in this case there was neither sin on the man's part nor that of his parents, but that it was an occasion for the display of the works of God and that he had come to execute this task while it was day because the night would come when no man could work. Since Christ is the light of the world, the task which challenged his attention was the opening of this man's eyes. The purpose of Jesus in working miracles was not a mere exhibition of miraculous power, but "to illustrate in the physical sphere his power in the spiritual sphere." It was illustrative of man's utter helplessness in his own salvation. The natural man is blind and dead (II Cor. 4:4; Eph. 2:1). God, by his Spirit, must quicken the soul dead in trespasses and sin before he can see to take hold on Christ, the remedy for sin.

II. The Man's Eyes Opened (vv. 6, 7).

1. The means used (v. 6). Jesus spat on the ground and made clay of the spittle and anointed his eyes. Observe that the means used in this miracle were a little less than foolish in themselves. The object must have been to show the man the utter inadequacy of the means to the accomplishment of the end, that he might be convinced that the power was of God.

2. His obedience (v. 7). He immediately obeyed. He did not stop to question the reasonableness of the command. Obedience only to that which seems reasonable is not obedience at all. He did not inquire as to what would be the result.

III. The Man's Testimony (vv. 8-36).

In his testimony we have a fine example of the development of faith.

1. He testified to his personal identity (v. 9). This was very easy. His self-consciousness enabled him to know that he was the same man who was born blind.

2. He testified as to how it was done (vv. 11-15). So definite was his experience that he was able to tell just how it was done.

3. He testified that the one who opened his eyes was a prophet (v. 17).

4. He testified that this healer no doubt was sent of God (vv. 30-33).

5. He worshiped him as the Son of God (v. 38).

IV. The Results of His Confession.

1. As to the people, they were divided in their sentiment (v. 16). Some believed Jesus was from God because of his works. Others believed that he was a sinner because he did his work on the Sabbath day.

2. As to the man, they cast him out (v. 34). Faithful testimony will often result in ostracism from religious people, but there must be faithfulness.

3. As to Jesus, he found the man (v. 35). Being cast out by men, he found himself in the arms of Jesus. He was led on to a deeper faith. He first saw Christ as a miracle worker, then as a prophet, and finally as the Son of God.

This whole lesson may be viewed from three angles:

1. As an acted parable of a life that issues from faith in Christ. It is an illustration of the spiritual sphere in terms of the physical.

2. The testimony of the deity of our Lord. This testimony is fourfold:
a. The miracle itself an unheard-of work, that a man born blind should receive his sight.

b. The unwilling admission of the enemies themselves who made a public and official investigation.

c. The testimony of the man himself.

d. That of his parents.

3. An illuminating example of the development of faith.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Get on once and use as directed. Fine particles of aged skin peel off until all defects such as pimples, liver spots, tan and freckles disappear. Skin is then soft and velvety. Your face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty of your skin. It removes wrinkles, the one cause of aged skin. Mercolized Wax is one-half pint with brush. At drug stores.

Noise Absorber

Dr. S. Barton Sklar, who was born in Lithuania, but served in the World war as a captain with the United States signal corps, has invented and patented an instrument designed to abolish unwarranted noises in an auditorium or music hall. Also sounds are made visible by its vibrating diaphragm which controls a point of light shown on the screen part of the apparatus. The intensity of the tone can be seen by the wide, or narrow range of fluctuations.

Relic of Old Days

A striking relic of the old Comstock days was unearthed at Virginia City by Albert Dressler, of Berkeley, a souvenir hunter, when he found an imitation glass cigar five feet long that was used to advertise a famous cigar store 50 years ago. The device, forerunner of electric signs, was lighted with gas and is constructed of 15,000 to 20,000 glass prisms.

O. Henry's Short Stories

Jimmy Hayes and Muriel—II

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Drawn by John Hix

Jimmy Hayes and his frog, "Muriel," became favorites in the ranger camp. He had an endless store of good nature and was never without his frog. But not once did Jimmy attain full brotherhood with his comrades. He had not been tested.

To make merry in camp is not all of a ranger's life. There are horse thieves to run down, bandits to rout out—at the muzzle of a six-shooter. For two months the border was quiet and then Sebastiano Saldar and his gang crossed the Rio Grande.

One evening about sundown, the rangers halted for supper after a long ride. Their horses stood panting. Suddenly out of the brush Saldar and his gang burst upon them, blazing away with six-shooters and high-voiced yells.

The rangers swore and got their Winchesters busy but the raiders galloped away, yelling. The rangers mounted and pursued but their ponies were fagged and they returned to camp. Then it was discovered that Jimmy Hayes was missing. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

New Lenox, Illinois

Divine worship will be conducted Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock in the Grace Episcopal church by the Rev. Paul E. Schauer of Mokena. The sermon will be based on the Word of the Saviour: "Today shalt thou be with me in Paradise." The best way you and I can keep Lent is by hearing the preaching of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The word of God still is a power of God unto Salvation and in the Passion story the fact of man's sin and God's love are driven home in a most convincing manner. The Sunday School meets every Sunday afternoon at 1:00 o'clock.

Card party was held at the home of Mrs. C. Griffin on Saturday February 6, in honor of Mr. George David, among those present were Margaret Johnson, Bert Gillett, Wilson Gillett, Buehlah Emery, Marie Emery, Max Muehler. All spent an enjoyable evening.

Ours is a time of great crisis and chaos. Yet nonetheless one of great opportunity. We believe people are ready to listen to the claims of a sane, intelligent, and courageous Religion.

We do not believe that God was ever glorified and honored by preaching the depravity of man. We believe that those religious groups who refuse to go beyond the intellectual interpretations of a Luther or a Calvin not only fail to meet the real needs of people in the real world of to-day, but that they render a positive disservice to the advance of Religion.

Are you weary of and disgusted with an interpretation of religion that fails to meet your actual needs in the actual world of to-day? Do you believe that religion is something to be lived? Have you ceased to respect the minister who can only repeat parrot-like, doctrines manufactured in the middle ages under conditions quite different from ours? Are you Protestant enough to refuse to believe that any one church, Lutheran, Methodist, or Evangelical possesses the whole infallible truth? If your heart answers "yes" to these questions, attend the Lenten services at St. John's, and learn what Sin,

THE STORY

Six bandits held up the steamer, Midnight Sun, on the MacKenzie, kill Jimmy Montgomery, and escape with gold dust and furs. At the Mounted Police post at Port Endurance, Sergt. Alan Baker disputes with his incompetent superior, Inspector Haskell, regarding plans for the capture of the bandits. Baker starts out in the police launch with five men. At the MacMillan trading post, Joyce MacMillan is thrilled at the arrival of the police launch. She had expected to marry Baker, and had been stunned at the news that he was to marry Elizabeth Spaulding. Stolen furs are found on the MacMillan place and evidence points to Joyce's father, Alan leads his expedition up the big Aloska. Compelled by Haskell's foolish orders to divide the party, Alan fails to capture the bandits, and returns to Port Endurance. Haskell blames him for the failure and Alan is allowed to buy out of the Mounted on condition that he absolve Haskell from blame. Alan starts out of the country in a motor canoe. He meets "Buz-zard" Featherfoot, famous aviator, and enlists him in the enterprise.

Buzzard had put in some busy hours too. He had filled up on gas and oil; had attended to several repairs and replacements; had acquired a pack-chute, new propeller and half a dozen costly flying instruments.

With a couple of mechanics whom he had awakened at an all-night garage, he was busy putting on the new prop.

Vaguely suspicious, Alan took him aside and asked quietly:

"Say, Buzzard, how did you get all this equipment? You've got more than a thousand dollars' worth here, and you only had two hundred—"

"I borrowed that stuff temporarily. There's several government planes here, and they had extra equipment."

"Borrowed it? Temporarily—?"

"Well, stole it."

"Stole it? Government property? Good Lord, man! That's a penitentiary offense. The authorities will dead sure catch on to who took it."

"Yes, I expect they will. At least the night watchman'll know. I invested five dollars in liquor for him; and he's sleeping it off over behind that hangar. He'll put them next to us." Buzzard's voice became serious. "But Alan, I couldn't get it any other way. We simply had to have it, or give up our trip."

"Yes, we had to have it," Alan admitted reluctantly. "I guess you did right, Buzzard." But it staggered him to realize that he and his partner were criminals now in the eyes of the law. Their motives would be no excuse. They faced a prison term if caught. And their capture was inevitable: soon or late they would have to show up somewhere.

He could not bring himself to reproach Buzzard. He himself had stolen a machine gun, though he had covered his tracks pretty well; and Buzzard after all had done this for his sake. And he felt that this theft was justified, if ever theft could be. With no chance of personal gain, at heavy cost of their own hard-earned dollars and at risk of their very lives, he and Buzzard were flinging themselves against a pack of murderous criminals.

He said: "We'd better be getting away from Edmonton forthwith. At daylight there'll be people here on the field. It'll be our fins if we're not gone."

They donned their flying togs. Buzzard showed Alan how to put on his pack-chute, how to jump clear in case of disaster and jerk the rip-cord. They climbed in and snapped their safety belts.

Reving up in short order, Buzzard flicked the throttle, jumped over the chocks, taxied down the field, and gave it the gun.

Just as the first rosy fingers of dawn were reaching up into the eastern sky, they hopped off, left the sleeping city behind them, and roared away into the North.

CHAPTER VIII

A Deadly Trap

"Slob-ice" Jensen was glaring around him at the other five faces in the tent.

"Some of you lubbers," he growled, "ain't got the sense you was borned with. You gimme a pain with your whining and growling and always wanting to argy about what I tell you. Now I'm gonna explain just what's ahead of us and what we gotta do."

The six men were as motley a crew as ever the whaling fleets of Bering's sea and the Western Arctic could muster up. With one exception the six of them were deck hands—wharf wolves of gutter speech and alley vices; strange men to be camped in the heart of a wilderness that even the Indians seldom penetrated.

There was John Siebielski, a square-faced squat Alaskan, a descendant of the Cossack Promyshleniki (fur-hunters) who for generations, when Russia ruled the northwestern shores of America, had held brutal sway over the Aleuts and Kalosh in their lust for peltry.

There was Pete Gonzales, a Sandwich Islander, brown-skinned, his white teeth flashing, his dress gaudy and picturesque.

There was "Lunnon Dick," a wiry stunted limey, with Battersea accent and quick jerky ways.

There was "Chink" Woolley, a quarter-Chinese, an olive-faced, silent nondescript, with his right arm in sling from Bill Hardsock's bullet.

The fifth was a Dogrib meti named Andre, a thin small weasel-like man of fifty. He had just returned from a scouting trip down the Big Aloska.

The six of them were talking, or listening rather to Jensen talk, of final plans to escape. Echoing the identical line of reasoning which Alan Baker had sketched in Haskell's cabin, Jensen went on: "Some of you wanta go back to the River and git outside thataway. H—i's fire—you'd mebbe git ten miles afore the Yeller-stripes 'ud grab you off. Some of you wanta go north to the Arctic coast. Whaffor? No ships to git away on, and the Yeller-stripes've got patrols there to boot. You say, 'Head south.' Yeah—and run into the nest of p'lice posts down there around Athabascy. We can't go south nor west nor north, but we kin go east—"

Lunnon Dick spoke up: "Clear hover t' 'Udson bay er Manitoba? Two thousand miles haway? That's a bloody long 'ard trot. Slob-Hice."

Jensen turned on him with a fierce anger and withering sarcasm that silenced Lunnon for an hour.

"Sure it's a h—ish long hard trot, you runty bilge rat! Don't I know it? But I'd rather tramp ten thousand miles than do them twenty slow short steps from a hoosegow to a scaffold!"

The others all nodded emphatically, fearful of Jensen's scorching anger. They were sitting there on a hundred and fifty thousand dollars which he had got for them. They owed their very lives to his quick thinking aboard the steamer, when he had pulled their trick out of the fire. And they were leaning on him now to save them from the Mounted and get them out to the oblivion of a big city.

He went on explaining the escape. "Now, here, all of you—look't here." He smoothed a place on the mud floor; and as the others leaned forward to watch, he drew a rude map with his long thumb nail. "We'll follow the Inconnu east a ways and then head south for Manitoba. We'll spend the rest of this summer and fall working down into timber country. Then we'll find some good hiding place and build a couple shacks and lay in meat, and we'll wait there till the break-up. Next spring we'll east on down and out to Winnipeg, and there we'll be with better'n a hundred and fifty thousand in hides and dust!"

His own personal and private plans after they did get out to Winnipeg, Jensen did not see fit to disclose. He knew a party there in the Queen City of the Wheat Plains who would buy the furs at two-thirds of their auction value and say "nudding." The dust, being unstamped, could be sold anywhere. He himself, both business manager and leader of this cruise, would naturally attend to those business matters. Once with the money in his pocket, would he split six ways with these lubbers? Or would he take a train and fade out of their lives and have that hundred and fifty thousand for his own sweet own? You bet your life he would!

With his plans clear and the men completely under his sway, Jensen leaned back against a packet of furs and sat, smoking, thinking.

He guessed that for once the police were altogether baffled. They must be pounding their heads to explain

Insignia of Royalty in Ancient Egyptian Tomb

A tomb discovered near Cairo, by Prof. Selim Hassan, containing a mummy adorned with a gold crown and a complete set of jewelry, is perhaps the only tomb in this area untouched by thieves. The gold crown was 24 inches in circumference. It was kept in position by two gold lotus flowers, joined by a chalice. Each flower was topped by a bird with a long beak, named in hieroglyphics "Yakhu." In the middle of the crown in front was a disk studded with colored stones set in another lotus flower. The large necklace was composed of 50 pieces of gold in the shape of some insects threaded on a gold string. Gold bracelets having the who he and his men were, where they had come from, how they had got into this country, unknown, unseen; and how they, complete strangers, knew the ins and outs of this northern wilderness as well as the police themselves. He thought of them as a pack of hounds circling frantically to pick up a scent. It was pleasing to know he had out-manuevered them from start to finish. A man who could beat the Yellow-stripes would have no trouble at all dodging the provincial police and town cops.

But this reflection was only on the surface of his thoughts. He was thinking of the MacMillan trading post. Breed Andre had said that Dave MacMillan was not there. Jensen shrewdly guessed where the trader was. From the MacMillan girl being alone at the post, except for that white-whiskered old coot, Jensen guessed that Dave MacMillan had got into trouble over that pack of otter furs in the storage shed.

Through the tobacco haze Jensen looked back across six years and saw again all the details of a certain incident between himself and Joyce MacMillan. He had re-lived that incident a thousand times since it happened. The memory of it, the memory of that laughing-eyed girl, had come down across the years like the scent of fresh violets. Two weeks ago when his party passed the MacMillan trading post, the place had seemed deserted. But he had known she lived there; and drawn by some overpowering impulse to see her, to be near her again, he had lunged caution and hot haste to the winds, and stopped, and gone shore. The picture of that MacMillan girl asleep, an arm under her head, a great-spurred violet in her hair—that flesh-and-blood reincarnation of her former memory had been a madness in his blood ever since. It had overshadowed his waking thoughts, had flitted across his dreams, had been present with him even during the hot battle with the three Mounties at the edge of Many Waters.

The news which 'breed Andre had brought back—that Joyce was practically alone at the trading post, scarcely two days travel away, that the trading had dwindled and few Indians or metis came now, that the officer commanding at Fort Endurance was giving her no protection whatsoever—this news to Jensen was like a match to a barrel of powder.

His deliberate brain saw danger in his scheme; but he had risked death for the furs and gold, and that hundred and fifty thousand was far less vivid, less tangible, less impassioned to him than the memory of that moment when he stood looking through Joyce's window. He had spent a year on a whaler without getting back to port; a year of exile in Alaskan mountains, among prospectors. . . . There are hungers more powerful than the hunger for food or gold. . . .

It would be ridiculously easy, he reasoned, to knock the old coot on the head and take the defenseless girl. They would land above the station and creep upon it through the bush. Two of his men would go in peacefully, as though to trade, and watch their chance to seize her. His party could swoop, strike, and have the whole thing over in ten minutes.

Knocking the ashes from his pipe, he leaned forward:

"Men, I got an idee. I just showed you lubbers our one chance to 'scape. Now I'm gonna show you how we c'n make out getaway dead sure and certain. How we c'n tie them Yeller-stripes up in a sack and throw away the key. Anybody objecting? Anybody wanting to kick over the traces?"

Glaring around him, he saw emphatic denials. The men were hanging upon his words; he knew they would obey him without a whimper of protest.

He went on, "We're going to make a little satchy down the Aloska to MacMillan's trading post. We're going to it tomorrow. We'll rap that old duffer on the head and take the girl. We'll throw them Yeller-stripes clear off the scent. While they're hunting for her, we'll be making tracks southeast to Manitoba. Y'mind how we saved our skins on the steamer by taking that other skirt? We'll do it again; but we'll carry this'n on along with us. No one'll ever know what happened to her. . . ."

For a few days after Alan Baker bought out of service and left Fort Endurance, Inspector Haskell enjoyed more peace and security than he had felt in many months. But after the first satisfaction wore away, it gradually occurred to Haskell that maybe he ought to make some move to capture those six bandits. To let them escape without raising a hand against them would look bad, very bad, to Superintendent Williamson on his coming visit to the post.

Measuring Atom's Movement

According to J. G. von Hevesy of the University of Freiburg, in Breisgau, all atoms are constantly in motion, even in solid metal. In an alloy of lead and gold, at a temperature half again as high as that of boiling water, the atoms wander through a space of a hundredth of a cubic inch in a day. In pure lead, however, moving about is not nearly so easy; in pure lead an atom can migrate in one day through a space of only two ten-billionths of a cubic foot.

It has to be pretty important when a majority of the people get mad about it at the same time and vote that way.

"The Thinker" Explained

Bobby was a sore trial to his mother because of his slowness in getting dressed. He never seemed to remember where he had put this and that article of apparel.

On one occasion he was taken to a museum where he saw a reproduction of Rodin's "Le Penseur." His mother explained that the title meant "The Thinker."

Bobby studied the figure intently for a moment, and then said, "He's probably trying to think where he left his clothes."

A man may need a slogan to keep from eating too much.

These thick, safe suds give whiter washes!

THERE are all degrees of whiteness. If you want to see the very whitest white that clothes can be—just try Rinso!

Rinso gives rich, creamy lasting suds even in the hardest water. Dirt loosens—soaks right out. Clothes come so white they don't need to be boiled. Even grimy cuffs and edges come snowy with little or no rubbing. Clothes last much longer!

Cup for cup, thrifty Rinso gives twice as much suds as lightweight, puffed-up soaps—it's so compact. And no softener needed! It's so safe, the makers of 40 washing machines recommend it.

"HE WAS BORN LEGENDARY"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ON FEBRUARY 22 America will begin a nation-wide celebration honoring the memory of the greatest American. For February 22 is the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington and, as a result of plans which have been in preparation for several years, the observance of this bicentennial will be the most extensive ever held in this country. But the ceremonies on February 22 are only the beginning of a series of patriotic pilgrimages, pageants, programs, dedication of memorials and other forms of celebration which will be held until Thanksgiving day, all having as their purpose a "re-awakening in the hearts of all Americans of an appreciation for the character and the life of America's greatest citizen."

In addition to these celebrations, the name of George Washington will be kept daily before his countrymen in other ways. Every time they mail a letter or a parcel they will see his face, for a series of 12 commemorative postage stamps, ranging in denomination from one-half cent to ten cents have been issued, each one bearing a likeness of Washington. In their pockets will jingle a new 25-cent silver coin which will bear the face of Washington on the obverse. This new quarter is not a "special issue" merely to mark the Washington bicentennial but it will replace the 25-cent piece now in general circulation.

The year is certain to bring forth also new books about Washington in which new attempts will be made to interpret Washington in his various roles as a soldier, as a business leader, as a statesman, as a President and as a man. In view of this fact, it is pertinent to raise the question, "Considering the amount that has already been written about Washington, is there anything new that can be said about him?" Off-hand, the answer would probably be "No!" Yet the fact remains that something new has been said about him and that in a recently published biography. It is "George Washington, Republican Aristocrat," written by Bernard Fay and published by the Houghton Mifflin company, and this book is important, not only because of the interpretation of Washington as a "Republican aristocrat" but because his interpreter is not a fellow-countryman but a foreigner, a Frenchman, therefore a man whose judgments are less likely to be obscured by partisanship one way or the other.

It is doubtful if there has yet been written such an adequate and understanding summary of the greatness of George Washington—without indulging in extravagant language—as the admirable essay which forms the introduction to M. Fay's book.

2—Portrait by Charles Wilson Peale which will be on the new three-cent stamp.

3—Miniature portrait by Charles Wilson Peale which was presented by Washington to his niece, Harriet. This portrait will be on the new one-half cent stamp.

Those who believe in the hand of God in the affairs of man will indorse the idea set forth in this introduction that George Washington came on the stage of history at the precise moment he was most needed. It was the Eighteenth century when all looked forward with joy to the arrival of an "enlightened despot."

"He was a gentleman. He was rich. He was a soldier. There was nothing of the revolutionary about him. And, for the first time, in more than fifteen centuries, he exemplified the type of hero who declined supreme power and wished to command only to serve. The world did not expect this; and it surprised the upper classes more than any other attitude would have done. And throughout the entire world the conservative classes, the middle classes, the enlightened nobility, and the people who, even though most cautious, were desirous of change, beheld the serene, great man with an astonishment which soon turned to enthusiasm. Washington accomplished, by the legend which so immediately surrounded him, more than anyone else had done. By his personality he prepared the extremists and the traditionalists to accept democratic ideas."

"There was nothing of the revolutionary about him." So it is all the more remarkable that this Virginia gentleman, this land-holding aristocrat, should engage in a struggle in behalf of the common people in which he had everything to lose and but little to gain. If he could have foreseen that he would have to carry on that struggle almost single-handed and then after it was won that he would be reviled by those whom he had served so well and for whom he had suffered so much, one wonders if he would have engaged in it.

For, like all great men—even more so than most—he was a lonely man—a lonely man, both in private life and in public office. Throughout his life he carried on his heart the burden of an unrequited love, his love for Sally Cary, who married his best friend and neighbor, George Fairfax. Even when he married "the Widow Custis" he was still a lonely man. While he was busy building up the estate at Mount Vernon, according to M. Fay, "He noted in his diary sometimes during a whole week that he had remained at home alone—although Martha Washington was living under the same roof and in the same house."

But this was as nothing to the loneliness that was to come to him during the dark hours of the Revolution when he was trying to keep together the wretched little army which congress had given him for winning the independence of the new nation—and then gave him nothing more, certainly not enough supplies or even moral support for carrying on his almost insuperable task. Even when he had been successful, when the new nation had rewarded him with the highest honor in its power by making him its first President, he was also the first to discover what every President since then has learned—that the Presidency is a lonely job, wherein the occupant of that position never knows whom to trust. For no sooner was he made President than he found himself traveling a lonely path between two opposing political ideals—the monarchical tendencies of the Federalists and the democratic theories of the Republicans.

So he followed his lonely course to the end. (© by Western Newspaper Union.)

Sudden Change of Plan

We wish to publicly announce that we have given up the idea of buying a dirigible. It isn't the initial expense that discourages us, but the fact that the Akron (Ohio) hangar for the dirigible Akron covers 8½ acres of ground. That convinces us that we have no business owning a dirigible. The hangar at Akron is the largest building in the world without center supports. The building is so large that a sudden change of temperature creates clouds within the building, and occasionally it rains in the building while the skies outside are clear. —Atchison Globe.

Sentimental Song Made Official Royal Melody

"Home, Sweet Home" is not the only operatic air that has become a kind of national melody, for France has a tune with words of a similar sentiment. This is "On peut-on être mieux qu'au sein de sa famille?" ("Where can one better be than in the bosom of one's family?") It was written by Gretry as a quartette in his opera "Lucille" and first achieved a political position when it was sung at Versailles on July 15, 1789, when the Bourbons were being turned out. It was also sung at Carlton house when George III and Queen Charlotte paid their first visit to the prince of Wales and his bride in February, 1795, which possibly caused the homesickness of the princess and made the marriage an unhappy one, and again at Korymbia on the retreat from Moscow on November 15, 1812. It was adopted as an official royal melody on the restoration of the Bourbons in 1814.—London Mail.

The Trouble

Prof. I. L. Sharfman, political economy expert of the University of Michigan, speaking of the Hoover-Laval conference, told an anecdote. "The trouble with the world is everybody knows just what the other fellow ought to do, but takes no thought about what he ought to do himself."

"I found a young bride absorbed in a dry-looking volume. 'What are you reading?' I asked her.

"An excellent thing' she said. 'It is called Happiness in Marriage.'"

"What advice," I said, "does it give to wives?"

"I don't know," said she. "I'm reading the advice to husbands." —Philadelphia Bulletin.

From Bad to Worse

President Shantz, of Arizona university, said at a Tucson tea:

"When racketeers begin to break the law they can't stop. They must go from bad to worse. Otherwise, destruction."

"It's like the boys and the milk."

"Two Tucson boys were carrying home a pitcher of milk."

"Oh, gosh," said the smaller one, as he wiped his mouth with the back of his hand, "we've drunk too much of it. What'll we do?"

"Do?" said the bigger boy. "There's only one thing to do now. We must smash the pitcher." —Detroit Free Press.

Odd Wall Design

A petrified snake, outlined in bas relief on a stone perhaps millions of years old, will appear in the wall of the first stone house to be built in Warren county, Pennsylvania, in seventy years. The fossil form, about two feet long, resembles a garter snake. Al Westren, builder of the house, was showing visitors over the scene. While inspecting the stone to be used in the construction, all of which is being used just as it is found on the hillsides, one of the visitors noted the form of the snake. Westren decided to use the stone in the construction.—Indianapolis News.

Presumption

Dr. P. K. Oltisky, head of the Rochefore research department of the Rockefeller Institute, ended a description of the Geneva anti-trachoma conference with a story.

"So to think, even after the germ is found that the malady is conquered," he said—"well, that is to be like the boy in the swimming pool."

"The boy was displaying, one by one, the treasures that were contained in his pockets."

"And this," he said, "this here is a washer—for makin' automobiles."

Next Legislature to Consider New Bank Laws, Says Hadley

New banking legislation probably will be an important matter before the next general assembly of Illinois when it convenes next January, Charles W. Hadley, Republican candidate for attorney general predicts. "The attorney general is second only to the governor in power and importance in Illinois," Mr. Hadley said. "He is the state's legal adviser and consul in all litigation. He is attorney for all state officials including the governor's department heads and the governor himself in his official capacity."

"Without question, many knotty problems will confront the next governor regardless of their identity. There will be problems of finance and undoubtedly the next assembly will consider important banking legislation as a result of the many bank failures through which hundreds of thousands of people in Illinois alone have suffered."

"Strictly speaking, it is not the attorney general's function to present legislation to the general assembly or submit messages to it as the governor does, but the attorney general's position is such that he can always get any matter in which he is interested presented to the legislature. "When I enter the attorney general's office next January I shall give the most thorough consideration to every piece of legislation, banking and otherwise, that is presented to me for my consideration. I shall do more than that. If I observe what I consider to be the need of new revenue or banking laws or laws of any other character, and such legislation is not already before the assembly, I shall see that the same is prepared and presented and shall do all in my power to obtain its passage, approval and enforcement."

Public Service Report Shows Increase of Business In 1931

Operating revenues of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois for the year 1931 were satisfactory, according to the company's annual report issued to stockholders this week. The amount of the operating revenues, the report states, was $35,916,019, an increase of 1.4% or more than a half a million dollars greater than for the year 1930. After payment of dividends and interest the amount carried to surplus at the close of the year's business was

Reductions in rates charged customers for gas and electric service decreased the revenues of the company by almost two million dollars during the past two years, according to the report. Although these reductions have brought substantial savings to customers, it is expected that they will have the result of stimulating the development of new business for the company. During 1931, electricity sold to residential and commercial customers increased 6.6%.

More than six thousand new customers were added to the company's service during the year, bringing the total now served to 445,000.
